

WHAT IS NEWS?

(May 1997)

0632

"Information that is interesting" is the simplest definition of news. News is the accurate and timely reporting of events, discoveries, opinions, or any matters which affect or interest readers, listeners, and viewers. News is change, disruption of routine. News is everything that happens and the result of those happenings. By any definition, there is a great deal more news than any news service can carry on its wire, than any newspaper can print, or than any radio or television station can broadcast.
